Environmental reporting

Case study

- Client ExxonMobil Chemical
- Requirement EMC wanted to publicise and celebrate the achievements of their workforce in the fields of Health, Safety and Environmental management.
Appropriate messages need to be delivered both to staff throughout Europe and to the members of the communities within which the company works.
- Solution Each year, the Regional Director of ExxonMobil Europe and North Africa presents the company's Responsible Care Awards in person at their Brussels headquarters.

Since 1999, Multimedia Design has been designing, scripting, and producing a multimedia presentation to support the ceremony.

Following the ceremony each year, we have gone on to create an intranet site to spread the message through the workforce and a booklet for wider stakeholders. Last year the booklet became the organisation's official Health, Safety and Environmental report.

The project achieves excellent value for money by reusing elements of the artwork through the varied media.

● Related environmental interests

Envirolink UK is the national service operated by Business Link to facilitate the direct delivery of environmental information and support at a local level for small and medium-sized businesses.

Multimedia Design designed and created the website and set up the database-driven facilities which ensure that visitors can find the information they require quickly and easily.

Multimedia Design is also involved in a number of internationally funded projects providing environmental information, training and support.

Working in consortia of international companies, professional institutes and universities we have helped pioneer new methods of training and information dissemination.

As part of the Energy for Europe consortium, we are currently working on a project on energy management lead by the Institution of Mechanical Engineers.

● About Multimedia Design
